Southern Know-Nothingism Succumbing to Abolition.

The 13th section of the new Philadelphia Platform is, in substance and effect, the exact antipode of the old 12th section. This new section endorses and approves the doctrine of Abolition, the old section condemned it. The Missouri Compromise admits that slavery is wrong, that it is an inferior social system, which it is the duty of government to discourage, and that slaveholders are not entitled to equal rights with other property holders. In effect, t brands them as wicked men, as wrong doers, as an inferior caste. For repealing this great wrong, for wiping out this false stigma on the South, the new Platform condemns the Administration. This, we maintain, is tinctured with abolition, and makes the Platform quite broad enough for Black Republicans to stand upon. If we of the South agree that slavery is too bad to said. On Monday last they felt like fun, and came be admitted into our territories, acquired almost ento the conclusion that they would turn Mr. Boyd's tirely by Southern wisdom, energy and chivalry, we are estopped from justifying it anywhere. If the people north of 36 deg. 30 min. are too good to suffer slaveholding, or to associate with slaveholders, the people south of that degree, are also too good, and the institution should be speedily abolished.

WILMINGTON, N. C., FRIDAY MARCH, 28, 1856

Mr. Haughton's Address. Most deeply do we appreciate the wisdom of the maxim which teaches us to beware of rash promises. A few days since we promised to refer, at our leisure, to the points presented in the "powerful address" of Mr. Haughton to his party in this State, slightly touching at the time upon one point. Well, now that we turn to redeem our promise in good faith, we find ourselves unable to do so, for the simple reason that the " powerful address" has no points. It did appear to have one, that about admitting to the rights of suffrage in Kansas men of foreign birth, who have only taken the initiatory step towards naturalization. We don't like to maul anything after it is dead, and, really, it does seem to us that the statement of a simple fact or two, then made by us in connection with this matter, deprives it of every remnant of vitality. Not alone was Mr. Fillmore, Mr. Haughton's own candidate, committed to the same principle against which he enveighs, but, still more recently, upon the very matter at issue, Mr. Badger, the great light of the opposition in North Carolina, stands recorded in favor of the Kansas bill. Nor will it obviate the matter to contend, as the Herald does in its vesterday's issue, that the difference in the latitude and position of Washington Territory alters the case. If physical causes, the geographical situation and the character of the country, precluded all hope of the introduction of slavery within the borders of that territory, it should be borne in mind that the prohibition of positive law kept it out of all territories north of thirty-six thirty, and that, without the legislation in connection with Kansas and Nebraska, slavery could not go, no matter how well adapted the soil and climate might be for the profitable employment of that species of labor, and, for the removal of this interdict, we are indebted to this very legisla-

It would seem to be rather a compliment than an affront, and, surely, an officer worn down by the services of half a century, and the weight of three-score years and ten, would be more in place at home, enjoying the honorable retirement and dig. nified leisure to which he is justly entitled, and which is in accordance with his growing infirmities, than he could at the head of a fleet on a boisterous element, where the promptitude and vigor of manhood in its prime is often taxed to its utmost capacity. Take the instance of Commodore Connor, recently deceased. The Commodore was an old man, who had not been to sea since the Mexican war, and whom no Secretary of the Navy would have been expected ever to send to sea again. He had fulfilled his mission. He had earned his reward. He was entitled to his discharge from the obligation to perform onerous duties no longer compatible with his failing health and growing infirmities, but he was also entitled to all the honors and emoluments of the position to which he had worked his way, and in which he had won laurels and achieved distinction: and he obtained them. The rewards at the disposal of a grateful country should be cheerfully bestowed upon those who have earned them, but not so as to interfere with the energetic discharge of the public service, by retaining in posts calling for unimpaired strength and activity, the valetudinarian or the superannuated. Judge Ruffin, of this State, set the properexample. He did not wait for others to suggest to him the propriety of retirement, because delicacy would prevent others from so doing-he did not even wait for a time to arrive when a suspicion of failing faculties might justify such suggestion. He retired before one jot or one title of his energy had been abated. He did not wait for his own infirmities, or the suggestions of others, to call for the act, but he did it freely and fairly, and avoided all such misfortunes by a dignified retirement ere the evil days had come. How few are there like Judge Ruffin

All parties are increasing their armaments. If peace does not follow, some hard fighting certainly will, the harder for the abortive attempt at peace. It is not simply a grave-yard or a church that is desecrated. It is the human heart with its purest emotions, whether such emotions cling round the spot where sleep the remains of the loved and lost, or ascend from God's temple on earth to his throne in heaven; and if these emotions are pure they will reach that throne, despite the sneer of the bigot, or the laugh of the thoughtless. COUNT DE CAVOUR-The Sardmian Envoy, Count de Cavour, though belonging to an old and noble family in Piedmont, did not become known as a public man until 1848, when he was chosen a mem of the newly created Sardinian Parliament, and there brought himself into noticeby the liberality, soundness, and moderation of his views. In 1850 he be came a member of the Azeglio Ministry as Minister of Commerce, and in this capacity, introduced the free trade system and other commercial reforms into Piedmont, which have materially enhanced his reputation as a statesman, and been of immense advantage to his country. On the breaking up of the Azeglio Cabinet, he was deputed by the King Victer Emanuel to form a new Ministry, over which he at present presides, holding at the same time the portfolio of Finance. ALI PASHA-The Special Envoy of the Sultan, Ali Pasha, like many others who have risen to the highest eminence in Turkey, is of extremely humbl origin, and commenced his career in a very subordinate employment. Unlike most of his countrymen, he devoted himself to study very early in life, and is now believed to be the most learned and accomplish ed scholar of his country. Brought into notice by his protector, Mehemet Ali, he gradually obtained To show to what extent England is indebted to the advancement in the service of the State, and during sia, by his obvious partiality for the struggling Magyars, and after their fall, by his magnanimous pro tection of those who had taken refuge within the dominions of the Sultan. He has since been appointed Grand Vizier, the highest office in the empire, and although he is personally unpopular with the British Ambassador at Constantinople, Lord Stratford de Redcliffe, and said to be of the French party, he is generally admitted to be a man of high ability, great learning, liberal views, and spotless in tegrity .- Journal of Commerce.

The Black Republican Paganini, OR THE MAN THAT PLAYED UPON THE HARP OF A SINGLE

In those modern days, preachers and politicians, of a certain stripe, have become as thick together as pick-pockets-in fact a political meeting, composed of the friends of freedom, fusion, and first rate whiskey, is no longer considered complete without a liberal sprinkling of the cloth, and it is seldom that one is allowed to proceed to business until some sanctified brother shall wall his eyes heavenward and put up a politico-religious petition suited to the emergency of he case, and as an offset to the heathenism and hypocracy which may immediately follow. Preachers, too, are sometimes found mingling pretty freely in the iscussions which take place at these political assemblages, and otherwise manifesting a zeal in pot-house matters, which goes to show that we live in an age of progress, such as it is. At the recent Republican State Convention, the cloth (minus the sack) were and rolling up their sleeves, it is said that they pitched in with a looseness known only to the shoulder-strikers and short boys of the Five Points, and by their new-born zeal for free whiskey, in abandoning the us for publication. It is as follows:

My BREETHERING! We are told somewhere-I needn't be particular where-that the psalmists of old could play upon a harp of a thou-sands trings, ah-but, my breethering, in these days of getting down stairs from grace, a Samist aint expected to do more than spread himself on a sing le string, ah .-Therefore, my breethering, ab, let us give ourselves no uneasiness about the nine hundred and ninety-nine strings that we can't handle, ah, but let us unite in playing upon a harp of a single string, spirits of white men made black, ah.

My Breethering! As we came stringing along into this convention, like pack-mules crossing the Isthmus, I thought to myself that each one of us might have a string of his own to pull, and that may be many of us might have several strings to his bows, ah. I hope I hurt no man's feelings by this discourse, ah. My motto always is to tell the truth and shame the devil, ah-an institution of sin and wickedness who is always roaming about like a roaring line seeking where he can kill somebody, ah. But my breethering, now that politics and religion have got so mixed up that you can't tell one from so pious, so patriotic, so disinterested! the other, I think it would be good for us to let go all holds, except the main one, and go our Billy best upon a harp of one string, spirits of white men made black, ah.

My BREETHERING! There are a great many kind of strings in this world, ah. First, there is the latch string hung out, and the latch string pulled in, ah .-Then there is the fiddle string, (and a very wicked string it is, my breethering.) and the bag string, and the pudding string, which some pious souls consider fhe proof of the pudding, ah. And then there is string beans, and that audacious varmint, Stringfellow, ah-but, my breethering, to return to my discourse, let me impress upon you the popularity of playing upon a harp of a single string, spirits of white men made black, ah!

My Breethering! I suppose you have all heard of a religious society called the Know-Nothings, ah. Well, my breethering, although I say it, who shouldn't, I've always been one of 'em-but, my hearers, I now feel to believe that that string won't do to tie to, ah for it is liable to break in two in the middle and let us fall several ways for Sunday, ah. No, my breethering, though Sam, at the outset, gave promises of immortality and salvation, yet in these latter days this "son of the sires" he is seen to stray off far beyond the travels of the prodigal son, and if we don't ook out the fatted calf will grow to be a bullock before he comes back again, ah. Therefore, my breethering, let us take to our human bosoms the sweetscented form of Sambo, that dark colored emblem of political equality, ah-and let us play upon a harp of single string, spirits of white men made black, ah.

My Breethering! We shouldn't be ashamed or afraid to own our color, ah. It is a very wicked hing indeed to turn up the human snout at the works of natur, ah. Who cares for color in a dog fight ? A rose by any other name would smell as sweet, ah. we do kiss the nigger babies, ah? The Egyptian mummies, who have been mummied these thousand years, are none the worse or the wiser now for anything they did while in the flesh, ah. It will be the same with us, my breethering, in the lapse of a few centuries, ah. When Gabriel shall blow his trumpet, the sky shall be rolled back as a scroll, and all natur shall be done up in a rag, ah, then the kissing of a a few big buck ones, will come back to our memories versal admiration. as a sweet smelling savor, and give us a lick forward

My Breethering! There is another string which a single string niggerism triumphant forever, ah The Recent Elections.

We stated a few days ago, as significant evidence esult of every election held this year, whether for State, county, or municipal officers, showed either large democratic gains or a full and complete democratic triumph. Such has been the result in Illinois, in Indiana, in Michigan, in Pennsylvania, in Maryland, and last, but not least, in New Hampshire .-Although, in New Hampshire, the battle is a drawn one-so close is the vote between Wells and Metcalf to them. -yet the democratic gains are so immense, and the current of public sentiment is flowing so surely and rapidly in the right channel, that we risk nothing in predicting that the old Granite State will be found next November in her old place in the democratic column, and none the less exultant for the fierce and unscrupulous combinations which she has had to encounter, struggle with, and overthrow. In looking over our exchanges from Tennessee, we find that at the late election held in that State for county officers the democratic triumph was not only decisive, but it was literally overwhelming. A careful and intelligent examination of the popular vote will show a democratic majority in the State of at east ten thousand! To show the extent of the political reaction which is still going on in Tennessee, we take at random the vote of one county (Gibson) at the election held a few weeks ago, which resulted in the defeat of the entire know-nothing ticket:

FOR SHERIFF.

N. P. Ramsey, (know-nothing)
Demogratic majority
FOR GOVERNOR.
Gentry, (know-nothing)1,618 Johnson, (democrat)1,213
Know-nothing majority
Pierce (democrat) 901

It will thus be seen that, compared with the election of last year, the democratic gain is 895. Compared with the presidential election of 1852, the democratic gain is eleven hundred and fifty-nine!

We recall to mind, however, the story of a German executioner, who far surpassed the Chinese in profession.

Mr. Fillmore may make a "lion" of the Pope in the household and kitchen Furniture of said deceased; Farmcutioner, who far surpassed the Chinese in professional dexterity. Upon one occasion it happened that a criminal, who was condemned to death, had a singular itching to play at ninepins; and he implored permission to play once more at his favorite game before he died. Then, he said, he would submit to his fate without a murmur. The judge, thinking there could be no harm in humoring him, granted his last prayer; and, upon arriving at the place of execuon, he found everything prepared for the gamethe pins being set up and the bowls all ready. He commenced his favorite sport with enthusiasm.

After a while the Sheriff, observing that he showed no inclination to desist, made a sign to the executioner to strike the fatal blow while he stooped for a bowl. The executioner did so, but with such exquisite dexterity that the culprit did not notice or feel it. He thought, indeed, that a cold breath of air was blowing upon his neck, and drawing himself back with a shrug, his head dropped forward into his for re-election to the office of Sheriff, and trusts that his efhands. tion with Kansas. Mr. Haughton says:

of the American party, and the position of the Demoshall take part in framing a State Government - the Democratic that the alien, the unnaturalized foreigner, shall have equal rights with citizens native born porn or alien, shall exercise there the elective franchise-the Democratic accords to the squatter the same rights in this respect as to the citizen."

This thing of admitting to the right of suffrage persons of foreign birth who have taken only the first step towards naturalization, seems to be the great engine of attack brought to bear against the Kansas establishing the Territory of Washington, "approved March 3d, 1853," by -Millard Fillmore! This identical clause, approved by Millard Fillmore, among his administration, stands in all three of the bills referred to, as follows:

" Provided, That the right of suffrage and of holding office shall be exercised only by citizens of the United States above the age of twenty-one years, and those above that age who shall have declared on oath States and the provisions of this act."

What Mr. Haughton was thinking about, we are unable to say, and it would certainly be as difficult to account for the action of the convention upon any known principles : why it should be reckless and unwise and un-American for Franklin Pierce to do pre cisely the same thing that Mr. Fillmore had signalized the close of his administration by doing, will be apt to puzzle plain men. Yet, Mr. Fillmore is immaculate, and Franklin Pierce is, in the opinion of Know-Nothing orators like Kenneth Rayner & Co., all that is improper and ungentlemanly. Does not the whole thing show for itself, and mark its own condemnation? It is as plain as that two and two

Death, after all, is a strange thing, and it matters little how or where it is met whether amid " the wild winds and the remorseless seas," away far from sight of land, or within sight and hearing of the population of a crowded city. We can only imagine the crash, the heel over, then the eddying plunge of the Pacific or the President, while we have all the harrowing details of the burning of the ill-fated " New Jersey," with her crowds of passengers, almost touching her wharf, and yet borne out into the bosom of the icy river, there to meet a horrid death in the very midst of life, and within view of home. These things are horrible to think of, but their very sud-There was no dull decay-no longing, lingering look behind. In April, 1849, a frost and snow visited our Atlantic coast, and cut off nearly all the fruit in Southern latitudes, but it also cut off the bug, or whatever it was that was killing the pines, so that, out of a temporary evil came a permanent good.

For years past, the tendency of things has been towards an increase of the area and the virulence of epidemic diseases. Ports escaping one year were pretty certain to be attacked the next, and [New Orleans, Savannah, and Norfolk and Portsmouth, have been turned into houses of mourning, while Charleston, Augusta, Mobile, Galveston, and other cities, have suffered to a greater or less extent, and the epidemic diseases of the low countries of the coast have penetrated farther into the interior than ever dreamed of before.
